him as the leader of an Opposition alliance drops from 27.2 per cent in August 2022 to 24 per cent now. What's also bad news for the collective of PM Modi's rivals is that only 38.9 per cent of the respondents believe that an Opposition alliance is possible to challenge the BJP nationally. Just a year ago, 49.2 per cent had vested their faith in such a possibility.

In fact, the prime minister's personal popularity has been the stumbling block for all the Opposition leaders. They need to create a sustainable narrative beyond personal attacks on the prime minister, as 45.8 per cent of the respondents say they get upset when Opposition leaders target Modi personally. When Opposition leaders criticised him on the issue of Chinese incursions, 37.5 per cent of the respondents felt the criticism was just for the sake of criticism while another 25 per cent deemed it unpatriotic to do so. In a democracy, that's also a sad commentary on the Opposition parties—they seem to have failed to offer an inspiring alterative for the masses to look beyond the incumbent. ■
