Q+A

Music to OUR EARS

After signing a record deal with Warner Music Group, Nora Fatehi sets her sights on being a global pop star

Q. Your debut as a singer was with the Arabic version of 'Dilbar' in 2018. Was music always part of the plan?
I always envisioned myself as a top stage performer selling out arenas worldwide one day. But for that, I need my own music. I am an entertainer and performer, that's why I'm creating these opportunities to diversify my career journey.

Q. With the Warner Music deal, is 'global music star' the next target?
This is a new chapter in my career. I invested a lot of money and time on building myself as a musician internationally while also working on being an actress in Hindi cinema. We plan to build my brand, 'Nora Fatehi', on a global scale, and I can't wait to collaborate with talented artistes and build my international music catalogue.

Q. Is this a good time for musicians from India and West Asia to be recognised on the world stage?
Most definitely! Even as we speak, there's a massive shift happening towards the South Asian and MENA (Middle East and North Africa) market. Languages like Hindi, Punjabi and Arabic will be mainstream in the next 10 years. Our era is coming.

Q. You sang the FIFA World Cup anthem at the 2022 final in Qatar. What is the one stage in the world you want to perform at?
I had dreamed of performing at the FIFA World Cup platform for years and I'm so grateful I got the chance to experience that. My next dream is to perform at the Grammys, the Super Bowl stage and, of course, again at the FIFA World Cup! With the love and support of my fans, I will work hard to reach these milestones. ■
