All's Fair in Art

Expect to see the India Art Fair, which will run in New Delhi from February 9 to 12, in its most ambitious avatar ever

THE INDIA ART FAIR (IAF), the leading showcase for contemporary art from India and South Asia, will be held from February 9 to 12 at the NSIC Exhibition Ground in New Delhi, with larger floorspace and a studio presenting the fair's Digital Artists in Residence programme. The fair will have 85 exhibitors—71 galleries and 14 institutions.

Among participating international galleries, Galleria Continua will present works by Anish Kapoor, while Bruno Art Group will present Andy Warhol.

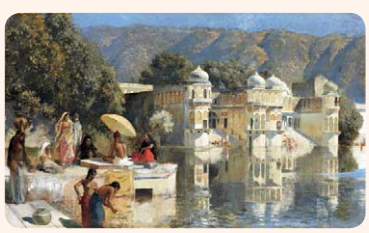

The Outdoor Art Projects as always are a highlight. This year, they will include Parag Tandel's sculptural installation of the seven small islands that constituted Mumbai before it grew into a mega metropolis; an eight-feet-tall and twisted fibreglass scale by Shivani Aggarwal inviting audiences to 'measure the intangible'; a marble dust sculpture resembling a pelvic bone by Prashant Pandey; a curated presentation of Serendipity Arts Foundation's Food Lab project; and a large-scale computational art project with NFT artworks freely available for visitors to collect.

The Platform section will showcase the artistic traditions of India through the works of contemporary masters, from Warli (Vayeda brothers), Gond (Dhavat Singh), Madhubani (A.K. Jha and Padma Shri Baua Devi), Pattachitra (Prakash Chandra), Kalamkari art (S. Srinivas Rao), Bhil traditions (Padma Shri Bhuri Bai) and Chamba Rumal (Charu Centre run by the Delhi Crafts Council), among others.

Running through the IAF month, the IAF Parallel programme features women-led exhibitions, including Arpita Singh and the late Indian abstractionist Nasreen Mohamedi at Vadehra Art Gallery and Chitra Ganesh at Gallery Espace. Meanwhile, the Kiran Nadar Museum of Art will show Pop South Asia, an exhibition of contemporary South Asian art engaging with popular culture. ■
