Soup OPERA

Netflix's Killer Soup is a black comedy crime thriller series that pairs Konkona Sensharma and Manoj Bajpayee for the first time

Last time Konkona Sensharma had a theatrical release, she featured in the ensemble drama Ramprasad Ki Tehrvi (2021), which had a limited run. "It hasn't occurred to me," she says of her long absence from the big screen. "It hasn't affected my work." That's because streaming has treated us to her talents—be it directing a short (Lust Stories

ENVIRONMENT

WHAT A WONDERFUL WORLD

The Open Planet initiative has made priceless footage of environmental stories—starting with ones from India—available to anyone for free

If you've ever watched Blue Planet, or any of the David Attenborough wildlife films, you will have gawped in amazement, not only at the incredible creatures, landscapes and natural wonders, but at the tenacity, patience and sheer person hours that have gone into capturing that shot. For every second of film that makes it to our screens, there are hundreds or more like thousands of hours of unused footage that lies on the cutting room floor (or its digital equivalent).

In an incredible act of far-sightedness and generosity, coupled by an urgent sense of planetary crisis, media companies across the world have woken up to the fact that this audio-visual 'waste' can be put to good use if only it were made freely available. Open Planet, which launched in 2023, does just that.

The brainchild of Bristol-based Studio Silverback and the creators of EarthTime at Carnegie Mellon University, Open Planet allows anyone, anywhere in the world, to access, download and use, for free, world-class footage of environmental stories, as long as this is for non-commercial/ not-for-profit use. This represents a treasure chest of resources, enabling content creators to tell, and amplify, their own stories: stories of change, resilience, and grassroots action at a time of global environmental crisis.
