

Sujan R. Chinoy, left, former Indian Ambassador to Japan and Kyoko Hokugo, Minister, Economic and Development, Embassy of Japan, India

▲ INDIA–JAPAN PARTNERSHIP: THE GAME CHANGERS

"Under PM Modi's government, a great deal has been done for Japanese companies, like setting up of a Japan desk. India needs to learn from Japan, in their formidable ability to skill its workforce to near perfection. We should have more India-Japan institutes of manufacturing. They have been training thousands of Indians in the Japanese style and Japanese firms have invested hugely in Indian start-ups"

SUJAN R. CHINOY
Former Indian Ambassador to Japan

"We are focusing on India's Northeast. We consider development of this region to be geopolitically and strategically important. India and Japan share values like freedom and democracy and we are acting hand in hand. While India takes over the G20 presidency, Japan has the G7 presidency, and we will cooperate to make the events successful. Japan is an ageing population, India is the land of the young. We can exchange people"

KYOKO HOKUGO
Minister, Economic & Development, Embassy of Japan, India

"Can the consumer pay for high tech infrastructure? One example: we make Lithium ion batteries, and demand for them for electric two- and three-wheelers are huge"

FAISAL ASHRAF
Managing Director, Mitsui & Co. India

(From left) Kanwaljeet Jawa, MD & CEO, Daikin India, Ajay Sethi, Managing Partner, ASA Associates, Manabu Yamazaki, President & CEO, Canon India