

between creative minds in Connaught Place. From 1984 till the present post-Emergency and Liberalisation era, the artistic beats are captured by documenting the way art and design have transformed at the behest of evolving ideologies.

"It seemed fitting that the gallery, which has so many artworks from the different eras of their operations, needed to find a way to tell the story of themselves and this area where artists used to spend time, and Ram Babu Jain (founder of the gallery) would fund their art and give them spaces to practice," points out Garimella. A host of other galleries and artists have also joined forces to bring this endeavour to life. The exhibition features archival works from institutions like the Delhi-based photo studio Mahatta & Co., the Alkazi Foundation for the Arts, works of the late Richard Bartholomew and his son Pablo, artist-designer Riten Mozumdar, the iconic S.L. Parasher alongside contemporary artists and designers like Rema Kumar, K.P. Reji and The Guild Art Gallery, Chaal.Chaal.Agency, Anwar Chitrakar, Chatterjee & Lal, among others. ■

-Arshia

T

The Kolkata Centre for Creativity (KCC) is hosting the fifth edition of its month-long AMI Arts Festival. This year, the festival will have more than 100 participants from all over the country and more than 70 events at several iconic locations in Kolkata, such as the Indian Museum, Victoria Memorial Hall, GD Birla Sabhaghar, Jadavpur University, Rabindra Bharati University, Presidency University and KCC.

The festival will kick off with a week-long photography exhibition and competition titled 'My Kolkata in Kolkata 5.0', which will showcase works of amateur photographers from across India. The inauguration programme includes a music instrument exhibition.

One of the highlights is an exhibition on rural heritage objects from Bengal titled 'From Field to Folk: A Journey through Rural Heritage'. Then there is IMAGINARIUM 4.0, an exhibition for art talent across India. Apart from this, KCC will host an affordable art fair, an exclusive art market dedicated to craftsmanship and endangered folk art and an exhibition on East Bengal football history. There will also be the FootPrint Film Festival and the EU Film Festival.

The AMI ARTS FESTIVAL will take place at various venues in Kolkata from Nov. 21- Dec. 22

Further, there will be a Kathak performance by Sudip Chakravarty and a Bharatanatyam performance by Nina Rajnani. Additionally, there will be classical musical performances by Shabnam Virmani, Shujaat Khan, Pandit Sanjan Mishra & Swaransh Mishra and the Murshidabadi Project, plus contemporary and fusion performances by Chandrabindoo, Hooliganism Fakira and Indian Ocean.

The festival will host nine theatre performances in English, Bengali and Hindi. Some of these include Purane Chawal, a Hindi adaptation of Neil Simon's The Sunshine Boys; Qissebaazi, a Dastangoi performance by Danish Husain; and a solo theatre performance, Traasadi, by Manav Kaul. There will be a host of workshops on pottery, chemical painting, indigenous and contemporary conservation, Krishnanagar dolls and tribal music. "This year, we have a couple of Diversity, Equity, Accessibility and Inclusion events like an art workshop for disabled children and a wheelchair dance at UTSAV III," says Richa Agarwal, KCC's chairperson. ■

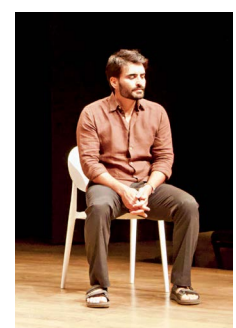

–Neha Kirpal

EXHIBITION

A CELEBRATION OF THE ARTS

The month-long AMI Arts Festival in Kolkata will have everything from exhibitions, talks, film screenings, book launches, workshops, plays to dance and music performances

KOLKATA VIEWS Clockwise from left, Avijit Datta's 'Inside the Factory' by; Manav Kaul enacting 'Traasadi'; Arkava Banerjee's 'Walls Have Eyes'; Bharatanatyam performance by Nina Rajnani