2. The Edtech companies cannot offer any MBA programme themselves. All MBA programmes are offered jointly by any university/ recognised institute

3. Ranking has been done based on objective data (information from secondary sources)

There are challenges of other kinds too. A concerning finding of the survey is the underrepresentation of women in B-schools, particularly in the top 25 institutes, where female enrolment is just 37 per cent, up from 28 per cent in 2015. This is a significant issue for a country aiming to bolster its female workforce. B-schools must take proactive steps to attract and retain more female students with scholarships, mentorship programmes and initiatives aimed at creating a more inclusive learning environment.

Placements remain another critical challenge. Though the India Skills Report 2024 shows that MBA graduates are the most employable, yet placement outcomes for the 2022-2024 batch have been less than stellar. Average salary offers at top institutions dropped by 5 per cent to Rs 22.7 lakh per annum. Salaries at many top B-schools have seen a marked decline compared to previous years, with international placements taking a notable hit, both in the number of offers and the compensation packages.
