Q+A

MEMORABLE SHOW

Nick Jonas's first-ever performance in India, at Lollapalooza, was a hit—if the chants of 'Jiju' were anything to go by!

Q. You rocked the stage at Lollapalooza. What was the experience like?

I am well aware of the high standards that Indian audiences have—especially live audiences, and there was a lot of anxiety. But I also know Indians like to have a good time and I had been prepared by my wife (actor Priyanka Chopra) to just have fun. That is all I did. The way the audience cheered for me was a reflection of how much warmth you guys have.

Q. Did Priyanka convince you to perform in India?

Indian culture is so rich in terms of the variety of songs, languages, tunes and what not. Priyanka herself is also a really talented singer. She was constantly telling me, 'You'd better rock it' or 'You'd better rehearse' and all of that. So, more than convincing, she encouraged me to put my best foot forward.

Q. You have worked with Indian singer King on 'Maan Meri Jaan'. Any more such collaborations coming up?

I had a lot of fun working with King, not only as an artist, but also as someone who admires him. I would love to work on joint efforts with him and other Indian singers and musicians any day! I am familiar with the Indian entertainment industry and the cultural significance of music. If I can get to swim in that vast ocean, it will be an absolute honour and privilege. Also, I would love to explore the idea of Priyanka and I singing together.

Q. After the hit Jonas Brothers tour last year, what are you looking forward to this year?

I am not pushing for anything in terms of work. There is stuff that is happening in an organic way and I am content with that. Our daughter has just turned two and that is an incredible phase in my life. Watching her grow—I intend to do a lot of that.

—with Aarti Kapur Singh

GETTY IMAGES