

“Ram temple is a pan-global phenomenon”

THE RAM TEMPLE IS AN opportunity for us to become more aware of the culture of Hindu spirituality. The temple should be a matter of national pride for India, regardless of religion and politics. The inauguration is also a pan-global phenomenon. The youth's enthusiasm shows pride in their cultural identity, not increased religiosity.

“Ayodhya has become central to the Hindu imagination, just as Mecca is for Muslims”

DHRUBA PRATIM SHARMA

Professor, Dept of Political Science, Gauhati University

The salience of any issue depends on its articulation and the way it is connected to local issues, and therefore assumes relevance in the present scenario. Ayodhya, which was almost unknown as a geographical location, has now become central in the Hindu imagination, just as Mecca is for Muslims. Caste atrocities, isolation of marginal communities and economic stress remain relevant across India, but these may not assume scale as electoral ploys unless articulated in a way that can disrupt religious mobilisation.
