GRAND REVAMP

Religious fervour had been filling Puri's very air in the days leading up to the opening of the Parikrama Prakalpa around the Meghanada Pacheri, the outer compound wall of the Jagannath Temple. The sounds of mantras and Vedic hymns marked the commencement of a three-day 'Maha Yajna' on January 15 as a prelude to the grand unveiling of the new corridor on January 17 by Patnaik.

To make the ceremony a well-attended affair, the government had sought to mobilise people from all panchayats to participate. Huge posters of a beaming Patnaik, with folded hands and the Jagannath Temple in the background, lined the streets in state capital Bhubaneswar and Puri, as well as the 70-odd-km stretch between the two cities, the airport and the railway stations.

The ceremonial king of Puri, Gajapati Maharaja Sri Dibya Singha Deb, presided over the event as 15 Vedanga priests chanted mantras at each of the four temple gates—Simha Dwara, Aswa Dwara, Vyaghra Dwara and Hasti Dwara. "The general public will enjoy the facilities and amenities of the parikrama. There are cloakrooms, washrooms and other facilities like mandaps where they can rest," Deb said, "The main attractions are the pradakshina paths, each about 10 metres wide." Representatives of all major Hindu shrines across the country, corporate czars and politicians were invited to the event. However, the Shankaracharya of Puri, Nischalananda Saraswati—who skipped the Balak Ram pran pratishtha ceremony in Ayodhya—was conspicuous by his absence at the Puri event as well.

The heritage corridor—built at a cost of Rs 300 crore, with an additional Rs 500 crore spent on land acquisition, reallocation and rehabilitation—encompasses nine elements. Alongside Meghanada Pacheri, there is a seven-metre green buffer zone, featuring a two-metre hardscape area for staff access and maintenance, while the remaining five metres have been transformed into a terraced landscape adorned with lush greenery. The 10-metre-wide Antar Pradakshina (inner circumambulation) is specifically designed for ceremonial processions of
