Decoding Unvined

Originating from the renowned house of Jacob's Creek from Barossa Valley, Unvined is a modern expression of winemaking. Mediterranean climate with warm-climate vineyards on the valley floor and cooler vineyards up in the surrounding hills allows Barossa Valley to produce some of the best wines globally. Known as the wine region of South Australia, Barossa Valley is a globally renowned region well known for its Shiraz, a big, bold red wine apart from excellent Riesling, Cabernet Sauvignon, Merlot, Semillon, Viognier, Mourvèdre, Grenache, and Chardonnay. Unvined is an alcohol-free range with the style and dependability one would expect from a world-renowned brand. A true icon of New World wines every single drink of Unvined promises to leave one questioning if it is the real thing. With 50% fewer calories than regular wine of the same varietal, the Unvined range caters to the evolved consumer base.

The advanced spinning cone technology is popular in the perfume industry and helps in delicately executing the dealcoholization process. The wines so produced are of exceptional varietal character, fruit-forward with silky texture, with bright and delicate aromatics. Unvined allows one to satisfy the cravings for wine without compromising the taste, flavour or texture of alcoholic wine. Developing dealcoholized wines that appeal to the palate is an art and time-intensive process that only a handful of brands have been able to accomplish.
