FROM GRACING THE RUNWAY of renowned Indian fashion designers to becoming a prominent face on the global fashion circuit, it was this Delhi girl's relentless love for fashion as a child that helped her make great strides after embarking on her modelling career at the tender age of 15.

"It has been a journey of continuous improvement, discovering new aspects about myself and my craft," says Avanti Nagrath, now based in London. "Over the years, I have learned and grown, evolving with each experience." In India, her portfolio boasts of Tarun Tahiliani, Manish Malhotra, Rahul Mishra, Pankaj & Nidhi, among others. A major milestone came when she opened for the Versace Fall/Winter 2022 show in Milan. Her meteoric rise on the international fashion scene continued with Bottega Veneta, Givenchy, Chanel, Jacquemus, Burberry, The Row, et al.

"Initially, overcoming challenges involved proving my versatility and breaking stereotypes," she shares. "Persistence, hard work and a strong support system helped me navigate those hurdles." What sets Nagrath apart is the ethos she stands for. Despite being part of an industry that often faces criticism for projecting unrealistic standards on society, she aims to use the platform to advocate positive changes in fashion. "I aspire to use my voice," she says, "to create awareness around body positivity, diversity and inclusivity." A noble mission for the 22-year-old runway queen! ■
