JIM ROGERS
Founder, Rogers International Commodity Index; author

BULLISH ON INDIA

Ace investor and commodity guru Jim Rogers was optimistic about India's present status, indicating that the country could achieve even greater success if the government remains committed to fulfilling its promises. "I have often been sceptical of the government in India. But for the first time in my life, I am beginning to think that they (the government) are getting it right," he said. "If Mr Modi does what he says he is going to do, wow, India is going to be even more astonishing than it is now." Rogers highlighted the equity outlook for the Indian markets and investment opportunities, emphasising the importance of investing in gold and silver. However, he expressed distrust of Bitcoins.

Rogers advised against investing in Indian stocks for the long term. "I would not suggest that you own stocks for five years because nothing has ever lasted very long." Instead, the veteran investor, who also co-founded the Quantum Fund and Soros Fund Management, recommended investing in farmland. "Agriculture in India would be a fantastic investment for the next five years." On the high valuations across all asset classes—property, stocks or gold—he said, "If everybody is making a lot of money, that usually is the time to get worried." ■

KEY TAKEAWAYS

- Currently, silver is down 50% from its all-time high, and gold is at an all-time high. So, if you want to invest today, buy silver
- Most people who buy when valuations are high with the aim to sell it even higher do not make money
- Buy a farmland in war-torn countries like Russia and Ukraine and you will make a lot of money once the war is over

IF NEW DELHI DOES WHAT IT SAYS IT'S DOING, AND IT MAKES THE CURRENCY CONVERTIBLE AND MAKES THE INDIAN MARKETS INVESTABLE BY EVERYBODY, INDIA IS GOING TO BE SPECTACULAR

I have never bought Bitcoin, I have never sold short Bitcoin. I expect them all to disappear someday... In my view cryptocurrencies are good trading vehicles. So, invest in them only if you're a good trader

IF I WERE IN INDIA NOW LOOKING FOR SOMETHING TO INVEST, THAT WOULD BE IN AGRICULTURE, IN BUYING FARMLAND. AGRICULTURE IN INDIA WOULD BE A FANTASTIC INVESTMENT FOR THE NEXT FIVE YEARS

Nearly everything–property, stock markets, gold–is at an all-time high. So, if everybody is making a lot of money, that usually is the time to get worried