THE FUTURE SHAPERS

Is it easier for the younger generation to grow their family businesses or carve out their own niche by starting their ventures? The session delved into this aspect of entrepreneurship. Shashwat Goenka, vice chairman of the RP-Sanjiv Goenka Group, shared his perspective, stating that although he was given the choice by his parents to work outside, the sense of growing the family legacy and adding value to it was ingrained in him from birth. He emphasised the huge responsibility that comes with legacy and highlighted that joining a family business allows one to assume larger roles at a younger age.

Keshav Reddy, the founder of Equal, a digital platform facilitating ID-sharing for Indians, and a third-generation entrepreneur from the GVK Group, noted the significant evolution of family businesses, with many transitioning into family offices and investing in new ventures. Reddy leads the Reddy Family Office as its managing partner and has invested in several software start-ups. He underlined the rapid changes in the world, especially in the technology sector, where tech companies have become some of the largest globally. Shashwat high-

The world is changing every couple of years, so your business model must be equally dynamic to adapt to changing expectations

WE ARE CERTAIN THAT SPORTS WILL BE ONE OF THE MAINSTAYS FOR THE GROUP GOING FORWARD

THERE ARE AMPLE OPPORTUNITIES FOR ENTREPRENEURS TO THRIVE IN INDIA. WITH OUR SIGNIFICANTLY YOUNG DEMOGRAPHIC, WE SIMPLY NEED TO HARNESS THAT POTENTIAL. I THINK THE WORLD IS YET TO WITNESS THE INDIA STORY

We employ over 55,000 employees, with approximately 45 per cent being women. These figures are a stark contrast to those of seven years ago
