#The survey was conducted before IIJNM decided to discontinue journalism courses

It has a strong placement cell that helps most of the students get placed every year. The highest annual salary (domestic) offered to students is Rs 9.1 lakh, the second highest among mass comm institutes

DID YOU KNOW?

Started with a small staff, IIMC initially focused on training Indian Information Service officers and undertook research studies on a modest scale

HOW TO PICK THE RIGHT INSTITUTE

Course curriculum: Check if it is updated and in step with the latest trends and innovations in the industry and if it has enough practical training

Infrastructure: Computer labs, studios and equipment for digital journalism are important besides non-academic infrastructure such as hostels and campus environment

Faculty: Find out if the faculty members are well known in the industry. What kind of guest faculty does it usually invite and how often?

Placement record: Review the placement record and general employability of the course, and determine whether it involves on-the-job training or internships as well
