Q. Your eponymous restaurant in Bangkok was listed at No. 9 in the World's 50 Best Restaurants 2024 and also named Asia's Best Restaurant. Were you expecting this honour?
We've only been open 22 months and being a part of this list is a reflection of our hard work during this time. In the coming years, we could be heading for the best! It's like climbing a mountain, you go up, come down and then start again. This is a new start for us and we're climbing faster.

Q. What are the ingredients of a successful restaurant?
Passion, authenticity and ethics. You have to be authentic to stand apart from others and be ethical with your diners and employees. We are a small restaurant that has made a big impact in a short period of time–that's because we are true to what we do.

Q. It's a milestone to join forces with Louis Vuitton for their restaurant in Bangkok...
Absolutely. It's about two brands merging to create something unique. It's an experiential space where you can expect Gaggan cuisine and the fashion of Louis Vuitton. Neither brand overshadows the other. Interestingly, I am the first chef to open this one-of-a-kind restaurant with the iconic brand.

Q. Anything exciting in the pipeline?
There's a lot happening but I want it to be a surprise. I had Louis Vuitton in my pocket for a year, but I couldn't reveal it. All I can say is something big is coming next year. ■
