Among government engineering colleges, the Indian Institute of Technology Delhi has always been in a league of its own, incubating novel ideas for research, initiating collaborations and tie-ups, facilitating industry participations and encouraging students to think out of the box and create solutions to societal problems. Not surprisingly, it is first among engineering colleges in the number of patents granted in the past three years as well as in the number of books published per faculty member. AIIMS Delhi is the topper in the same category, its glory equally unassailable in the Medical stream. Success begets success—the institute also received research work worth Rs 97.06 crore last year, the highest among medical colleges. In Dental Sciences, the Maulana Azad Institute of Dental Sciences gives its students the same opportunity to broaden their horizons through their collaboration with the Tufts School of Dental Medicine, USA.
