Founded by the visionary entrepreneur G.D. Birla in his hometown, the Birla Institute of Technology and Science, Pilani, known popularly as BITS Pilani, has not only set an unparalleled standard in engineering education but has also become a breeding ground for innovation. No one puts it better than Group Vice Chancellor V. Ramgopal Rao—"If I had to describe BITS in one word, it would be the University of Entrepreneurship."

The proof is in the numbers. BITS Pilani's illustrious alumni have founded 14 unicorns and one decacorn, including household names like Swiggy, BigBasket and Groww. This remarkable entrepreneurial success has fostered a culture of mentorship and support, where alumni actively guide and fund the next generation of start-ups, shepherding them through the challenges of the business world.

As the institute continues to expand its research capabilities and PhD courses, the number of new students enrolling in doctoral programmes reached 663 in the academic year 2023-24, an 80 per cent rise within four years. This focus on research has yielded tangible results, with the institute's research publications soaring to 2,944 papers in 2023 and the number of patents to 60 in AY 2023-24. ■
