Pradesh, the country's largest state with 80 Lok Sabha seats, the BJP tally plunged to 33 seats in 2024 from 62 in 2019. It gains only two seats and its ally one in the current MOTN. But with the spat over who is to blame for the 2024 debacle in the state going public, the BJP has so far not been able to set its house in order. In Maharashtra, which has 48 seats, the INDIA group maintains its lead of 30 seats, the BJP and its allies getting the remaining 18 seats. With an assembly election due in the next couple of months, there are no signs yet of the BJP recovering ground either. In West Bengal, the BJP's slide continues, with the MOTN predicting a loss of four seats out of the 12 seats it won in the summer, three of these going to the TMC and one to the Congress. Only in Bihar, which has 40 seats, has its fortunes shown an upswing at the cost of INDIA. The NDA gains five seats, pushing its tally to 35. In Tamil Nadu, the NDA has made no dent in INDIA's clean sweep of the state's 39 seats. Thus, in the five big states that account for a total of 249 seats, the BJP gains have been minor. In Haryana, which goes to the polls next month, the BJP's bid to retain power appears to be an uphill task, with the poll showing the Congress continuing
