

and private. Many of them are icons of their respective specialty. They collectively built and strengthened the healthcare systems and offerings of which the nation is proud of. Among the leading government hospitals who have played a defining role in fortifying healthcare are Post Graduate Institute of Medical Education and Research (PGIMER), and Government Medical College and Hospital (GMCH) in Chandigarh, Safdarjung Hospital and Lok Nayak Hospital, in Delhi, King Edward Memorial (KEM) Hospital, Mumbai, Nizam's Institute of Medical Sciences (NIMS) and Osmania General Hospital (OGH), in Hyderabad, Government General Hospital, Chennai, Christian Medical College (CMC), Vellore, Sanjay Gandhi Postgraduate Institute of Medical Sciences (SGPGIMS) and King George's Medical University (KGMU) in Lucknow, National Institute of Mental Health and Neurosciences, [NIMHANS] Bengaluru, Karnataka, Guwahati Medical College and Hospital (GMCH), Guwahati, Patna Medical College and Hospital (PMCH), Patna.

With liberalisation, India witnessed marked change with private players making their presence felt in healthcare sector. Visionary doctors, philanthropists and investors created an enabling corporate styled healthcare brands and also chain of hospitals. Moved by a sad incidence, the Dr Pratap C. Reddy, founded the Apollo Group of Hospitals with the vision and mission to bring world-class healthcare to the doorstep of millions of patients' across the country. A compassionate humanitarian, Dr Reddy, is celebrated for being the first to start a home grown multinational healthcare group headquartered in Chennai. It is the largest private hospital network in India. Inspired by the success story of Apollo Hospital, many other multi super speciality hospital chains such as Fortis Hospitals Group, Max Super Speciality Hospital, Wockhardt Hospital, Narayana Health Hospital, Asian Institute of Medical Science, Columbia Asia Hospital, Hinduja Healthcare Limited, Manipal Hospitals, and Aster DM Healthcare were launched in different regions of the country. These hospitals were manned by innovative healthcare leaders who set high benchmarks in terms of accessibility, affordability and quality of treatment. The credit goes to these forward-thinking leaders, who redefined Indian healthcare capabilities with answers to any challenge. The collective strength of the Indian medical fraternity, their agility to adopt to new systems and attend to overwhelming number of patients during the recent Covid Pandemic is an outstanding example of focus on a single goal of being patient-centric and succeed in the task they undertake.

A compassionate humanitarian, Dr Reddy, is celebrated for being the first to start a home grown multinational healthcare group headquartered in Chennai. It is the largest private hospital network in India.

In the healthcare milieu, mention should also be made of some iconic standalone brands, which have been a turning point in healthcare deliveries. Tata Memorial Hospital, Mumbai, Sir Gangaram Hospital, New Delhi, are based on philanthropy, excellence, quality and a humane approach towards patients.

Escorts Heart Institute in Delhi was the first standalone hospital, which is the brainchild of the world renowned cardio vascular and cardio thoracic surgeon, Dr Naresh Trehan, who later went on to establish Medanta-The Medicity in the thriving city of Gurgaon in Haryana. The celebrated Dr Devi Prasad Shetty, a cardio thoracic surgeon, Founder Chairman of Narayana Health, is feted for transforming heart care in the country. He went on to build a chain of hospitals in different parts of the country.