Indigo breeze or fusion sky, milkshake or coral coast, sands of time or tropical tan, Swiss coffee or river reed, almond kiss or dried spices. No, these aren't a list of exotic cocktails rather names of paint shades by Asian Paints. With over 2,200 plus wall shades to choose from, the paint giant leaves you spoilt for choice. However, before you fret over the picking a hue from the shade card Asian Paints eases the process by announcing Terra as the Colour of the Year 2024. Terra has been chosen for its rich primal tones that bear a strong sense of grounding and belonging. But more on that later. First, let's take a deeper look at ColourNext colour and material intelligence forecast for the year by the brand.

Like every year, there are four forecast stories. This year they are: Soil, Into the Deep, Indo Futurism and Goblin Mode. "As we mark the 21st year of Asian Paints ColourNext, it remains a driving force in shaping the design and decor industry adding to the colour and material intelligence in a strong way. Each carefully curated trend not only tells stories, but also serves to inspire and influence the industry towards ideas based on socio economic changes and the design evolution around us," says Amit Syngle, Managing Director and CEO, of Asian Paints.

Not only does ColourNext map consumer behaviour and consumption patterns, it also looks at socio-cultural sentiments and lifestyle shifts, for over two decades. This has evolved into the subcontinent's most-awaited and one-of-its-kind intelligence in colour and material. The entire forecast is backed by the science of research tools and colour psychology and is put together based on comprehensive research by the country's prominent tastemakers from the fields of architecture, art, interiors, fashion, sociology, media and FMCG. "This year's colour and trend palette is, at its core, a celebration of individuality and introspection. ColourNext 2024 continues its legacy, inspiring creativity and setting the tone for a vibrant and dynamic design journey," says Syngle.

WALLPAPER OF THE YEAR
Mysterious and intense composure of textural terrain-like layered lines defines Samsara, the Wallpaper of the Year. With pigments obtained from mud, tea leaf and natural dyes, and crushed with gouache wash and metallic gold leaf, it echoes the profound and overflowing beauty of soil.
